FEAR OF EARTHQUAKES CAUSED SENATE COMMITTEE TO SO DECLARE.

No Guaranty That the Canal Zone Will In Future Be Exempt From Such Disasters as Overwhelmed San Francisco.

Washington, May 21.—That the earthquake which destroyed San Francisco was an important factor in determining the vote of the senate committee on interoceanic canals in favor of a sea-level type is apparent from the fact that a feature of the majority report is a discussion of the effect such an earthquake might have on locks and dams.

The majority report in favor of a sea-level canal was submitted Thursday by Senator Kittredge. On the subject of danger from earthquakes on the isthmus and the possible effect on the two types of canal proposed, the report says:

"The recent calamity that overwhelmed one of our great cities has caused many forebodings. The assertion that any particular spot in the tropic is exempt from all danger from such convulsions of nature as recently visited California, or wrought great havoc near Charleston, S. C., in 1886, or changed the face of nature in southeastern Missouri, near the beginning of the century, would not be assented to by any wise man. That the isthmus of Panama is not exempt conclusively appears, and we can have no guaranty that the canal zone will in the future be exempt from such disaster.

Effect of Earthquake.
"The canal structures that would be most exposed to injury by the passing of an earth wave of violent movement of the earth's surface are the locks proposed by the minority, whose walls, many hundreds of feet, or even two or three thousand feet long at Gatun would, at least some of them, be more than 100 feet high and entirely unsupported on one side save for a part of the height by water. If these walls should be moved at all, the natural and probable result would be in their leaning and so prevent the closing of the gates—an injury for which a suggestion of extra gates or hand would be useless, for no one could guess the extent of the movement. But the most likely effect of such shock would be the fracture of these locks, in repairing of which much time—months or years—might be required, and thus cause interruption of traffic or the abandonment of the canal.

"The minority suggests that the dam at Gamboa, included in the plan of the board, would be as likely to sustain injury from such convulsion as the structure above mentioned. This is not the fact. The Gamboa dam is built on a solid rock foundation, reinforced with strong walls of rock. It is a structure the least likely to be affected of any superimposed on the earth's surface, and no record is found in any similar structure being seriously injured by such circumstances. The side slopes of the Culebra cut would be no more likely to be disturbed than are the nearly vertical slopes near the divide, that have never been affected.

"An earth dam on alluvial base, as proposed by the minority, might be fissured if the earthquake passed the locality, and if a crack in the dam or its base should open, the dam would go out, the lock drain, and the canal be ruined. "At San Francisco, where the water pipes were broken, the disaster was greatly augmented by this cause, for the water could not be held in the pipes and be directed on the flames. What would happen to the aqueduct conduits, pipes and valves buried in the concrete walls used for filling and emptying the locks, can not be conjectured."

Most Decisive Type.
After reviewing the legislation and the messages of the president on the subject of the canal, the report says it is due to the executive branch of the government that the uncertainties incumbering the president as to his powers in the premises be settled and disposed of affirmatively, once and for all, by the only national authority competent to pass upon the question—the national legislature.

The division among experts as to the best type of canal is treated by the report, which says that the conclusion has been reached that the following propositions are irrefutable: That the ideal canal is one at sea level; that its construction would be attended with more, and probably with less, hazard than one with locks and dams on doubtful foundations; that the sea-level canal is safer and more convenient than one with locks; that it would take but little longer time to build; that it is the simpler and the more economical in operation and maintenance.

The estimates of the minority and the majority of the board of consulting engineers on the time that would be required to excavate the different types of canal are reviewed, and the majority report concludes that the sea-level canal would not require more than two or three years more than the lock type.

Risks encountered in the operation of the sea-level canal are made light of by the report, which says the Gamboa dam would be ready to control the Chagres floods before the Culebra excavation is half finished, and the balance of the excavation in the prism and below sea level could go on without interruption. When the Chagres is subsided and controlled and the sea-level canal made, its use will be attended with no more risk than equal sailing distance in the oceans.

Locks and Dams.
A chapter of the report is devoted to the locks and dams proposed by the minority report of the consulting engineers, and these are asserted to be an element of danger. The various accidents to which such mechanism might be subject are recounted, and the report asserts that these hazards can be avoided by the small sacrifice of time necessary to the construction of the sea-level canal.

The claim is made by the report that ships of all classes could be passed through the sea-level canal in eight hours, and that half that time would be consumed in passing ships through locks alone. The cost of annual maintenance is estimated at $1,840,000 for the sea level and $2,330,000 for the lock type.

Discussing the advantage of the sea-level canal to the country controlling it in time of war, the report says: "If free from all obstacles to quick transit 100 warships of average size, moving in one direction, could be passed from ocean to ocean in less than a day.

"All naval commanders and commercial masters of the great national and private vessels of the world are almost to a man opposed unalterably to the introduction of any lock to lift vessels over the low summit that nature has left for us to remove."

The majority urges that an enemy could destroy a lock canal much easier than a sea-level canal, with explosives.

Cost.
The ultimate final cost of the sea-level canal, as estimated by the majority, is $250,000,000, while the cost of the lock canal is regarded as uncertain. The minority of the board of consulting engineers estimated the cost at $139,705,200, and to this the majority says should be added the interest on the extra cost of maintenance, the expenses of clearing the titles to the 118,000 acres of land that would be submerged by the central lake proposed by the lock plan, which, it is estimated, would make the total cost at least $190,000,000. The cost of transferring the lock plan into a sea-level canal, after the former is completed, is estimated at $200,000,000.

In conclusion, the majority says: "Your committee feels entirely confident that the board of consulting engineers, selected to study this problem, has submitted a plan that responds in every respect to the conditions stated above, and that the sea-level canal can be realized in ten or eleven years, at a cost not to exceed $60,000,000 above that required by the construction of the multi-lock canal proposed by the minority."

MISSOURI GLEANINGS.

Banks and Trust Companies.
Jefferson City—In response to the recent call of Secretary of State Swanger for an official statement of their financial condition, at the close of business on March 20 last, reports were submitted by 885 incorporated and private banks and 28 trust companies. Of the banks, 15 are located in St. Louis, six in Kansas City and eight in St. Joseph, the remaining 781 being distributed over the state. These figures do not, however, include all the banking institutions in the state, as those organized within 90 days prior to the call are not required to make a statement.

St. Louis banks, exclusive of the trust companies, make a splendid showing, the capital stock of the 15 of them being $4,750,000, as against $17,739,213.34 for the 781 banks out in the state, exclusive of Kansas City and St. Joseph. A comparison made with the financial reports submitted April 13, 1896, shows a gain over that date of 319 banks outside the large cities, a decrease of two in St. Louis, a loss of one in Kansas City, a gain of three in St. Joseph and a loss of 26 private banks, yet the total gain for the recent statement over that of ten years ago, exclusive of trust companies, which were not then required to report, is 495, and with the 28 trust companies the gain is 533.

In the ten years the resources of the banks outside the three cities increased from $47,739,213.34 to $117,484,945.42, a net increase of $70,745,706.28. Though St. Louis had only 15 banks when the recent statement was made, as against 17 in 1886, there was an increase of $16,172,825.78 in their resources. The total resources of all the banks in 1896 was $108,918,253.77, which increased in 1906 to $207,201,945.99, a net gain in the ten years of $98,283,692.22. While there are but 28 trust companies reporting as against 885 incorporated and private banks, the difference in their resources is not nearly as great as that in the numerical strength of the two classes of institutions. The total resources of the 885 banks amount to $207,201,945.99.

Kemper went out and induced him to return, but the expected marriage did not take place. It is stated that Seelinger's father told him if he married the girl he would disinherit him. Both families are prominent.

HE WENT ON CRUTCHES

All Medicines Failed Until Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Cured His Rheumatism.

"Some years ago," says Mr. W. H. Clark, a printer, living at 619 Buchanan street, Topeka, Kans., "I had a bad attack of rheumatism and could not seem to get over it. All sorts of medicines failed to do me any good and my trouble kept getting worse. My feet were so swollen that I could not wear shoes and I had to go on crutches. The pain was terrible.

"One day I was setting the type of an article for the paper telling what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills had done for a man afflicted as I was and I was so impressed with it that I determined to give the medicine a trial. For a year my rheumatism had been growing worse, but after taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills I began to improve. The pain and swelling all disappeared and I can truthfully say that I haven't felt better in the past twenty years than I do right now. I could name, off hand, a half-dozen people who have used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills at my suggestion and who have received good results from them."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are guaranteed to be safe and harmless to the most delicate constitution. They contain no morphine, opiate, narcotic, nor anything to cause a drug habit. They do not act on the bowels but they actually make new blood and strengthen the nerves.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure rheumatism because they make rich, red blood and no man or woman can have healthy blood and rheumatism at the same time. They have also cured many cases of anemia, neuralgia, sciatica, partial paralysis, locomotor ataxia and other diseases that have not yielded to ordinary treatment.

He Wasn't Certain.
At Fortress Monroe, Va., one day about a year ago, a man, accompanied by two ladies, approached a soldier who, with a gun on his shoulder, was pacing to and fro near the entrance. The warrior's appearance indicated that he was new to the service.

"Can you tell us," asked one of the visitors, addressing the recruit, "where Jeff Davis was imprisoned here?" "Yonder's the ga-a-a-d house," he replied, jerking a thumb over his shoulder, "but I dunno whether they've still got him shut up or not."—Chicago Record-Herald.
